A few nights ago an Indian was stopped by a foot pad, who put two pistols at his head and demanded his money. It was quite dark and the Indian was probably mistaken for a white man. When the identity of the Indian was revealed the foot pad swore a little and told him to pass on.

Robert Duncan Milne has written a new story for the Argonaut of July 27th, in which he sets forth one of those strange, scientific theories which have made his name famous among writers of short stories. It is called "An Artful Mirage," and tells of a marvelous discovery in optical science, whereby the operator of the novel apparatus may bring before him any scene within the hemisphere of which he is the centre.

Hot for Steamboat.

The following is the program of next Sunday's sport at Steamboat Springs:

HOW IT'S DONE.

Tre Way to Draw a Jury of Your Own.

Last week Judge Wallace of San Francisco noticed that the Clerk of the Court had a peculiar twist to his wrist as he was drawing the names of Jurors out of the box.

When he examined the matter he found that the name of one of the jurors was written on a slip of paper folded a certain way. The Court had the names all taken out of the box, written on fresh slips and re-drawn.

The Clerk might have been playing the game that the late Zine Barnes played at Pioche. He told the whole story to the Appeal and it was published in an interview. It would seem that its republication now would enlighten Judge Wallace a little.

"You see" said Zine "when I started the Raymond and Ely and Hermes suit I was in cahoots with both sides. Neither mine dared go into Court unless it had the jury dead to rights. I told 'em I would select a jury and I did. I showed 'em the names and everything was O. K. I showed each company the same names and they said 'go head.' So I showed the names to the County Clerk and instructed him how to draw 'em, giving him one thousand dollars to work the trick.

"You just take a piece of cardboard and bend it up in your hand. You lay twelve ballots you want in the hollow of the card board and crumble each ballot so you can't mistake it and then you dive the hand into the box and grab the cardboard with the ballot tight in your hand." Stir your arm round like you were making pudding or gingerbread and then let go carefully and reach inside the card-board, gently drawing out a ballot from the hollow place.

"A little practice and you are all O. K. The chap was as cunning as a weasel but he got rattled on the last turn and made an awful blunder. He only drew the names of eleven men we wanted and we had to trust to luck for the other fellow."

The Pratt Fund.

Thanks to the people of Carson City, the Pratt fund is still crawling upward. Yesterday's contributions were as follows:

N. Mura and family	40
Geo. McLaughlin and wife	20
Miss B. Smith	10
Mrs. C. T. Hambleton	10
Miss Jessie Brumby	10
Fred Day	25
Mint drops	60
Milton Dority	10
S. S. Fairbanks	50
J. M. Haley and wife	20
Postoffice force	30

Total.....$2 85
Previous contribution $14 05

Total.....$16 90
None of our contemporaries have subscribed a cent to the Pratt fund, or said a word to help it along.

The way some people hold on to a ten cent piece is one of the wonders of the West.

An Editor who is a Rustler.

We don't claim to be ubiquitous, neither do we lay claim to being much of a rustler, but we are occasionally endowed with a "git thar" faculty that is remarkable—at least for us. Last Sunday we "set up" a column of type in Modoc county, ate dinner in Lassen county, shot and assisted in skinning a beef in Shasta county and drove a horse in off the range from Siskiyou county, and arrived home in good old Butte before sun-down.—Oroville Mercury.

Cheap Dentistry.

Dr. Cureton, the new dentist, is now advertising full sets of teeth for $10. These figures must astonish Carson people and be also gratifying to them to know that dental operations are to be had here at figures somewhere near San Francisco prices.

A Bouncing Boy.

Fred Day's wife presented him with a bouncing boy yesterday. Fred was about town drinking the youngster's health all afternoon.

TAHOE REAL ESTATE.

Something that Nobody Can Buy.

The Sierra Nevada Tourist has the following:

We have heard a number of inquiries as to there being property for sale on Lake Tahoe. Persons who visit that vicinity should be informed by means of advertising what and where there is property for sale. It is fast becoming popular for tourists from the Eastern States to come West instead of spending the Summer at their home resorts. They find Lake Tahoe the best place to spend their vacation. The scenery is as good as can be found anywhere, pure water and air, delightful climate, beautiful landscapes, and in fact all the advantages anyone could ask for. This marvelous lake is being known to the people of the East as well as the West, as the tourist's paradise. The people of Southern California also enjoy the change by taking their vacation at the wonderful lake situated 6,200 feet above the resorts on the sea shore. Many persons would like to purchase from 10 to 80 acres of land or even more, for a private resort, in order that they may have some land on the shore of a lake that has such bright prospects of becoming the most noted resort of this country. If anybody has property for sale and advertises it they will soon find buyers.

The above is all very well as far as it goes but no one can purchase property near Tahoe for the moment the owner meets a purchaser he doubles the price and the would be investor goes elsewhere and buys.

Sugar Beets.

The Lehi Banner says that the sugar factory being located at that place has greatly changed affairs, waking the people up from their sleep and making the town a lively business center. It was hard to get the farmers to engage in raising beets, but the experiment seems to be turning out well since the Banner says: "Farmers who have planted beets say that it is the highest crop they have ever grown and many of them think they can be raised without water. Some beets have been raised this Summer which have not been irrigated, which will weigh nearly a pound and a half. The crop has been thinned out and is growing finely."

A Whiff Means Death.

There is said to be a spring in Mendocino county from which rises such noxious gas that one whiff of it will extinguish life almost instantly. The deadly spot is but a short distance from a county road, and, strange to say, although parties living in the vicinity are acquainted with the place, no warning to strangers is to be seen other than the bones and partially decayed bodies lying about the spring.
